Introduction

What does it do?

The extension adds new items to the new context menu in the page tree, which was introduced with TYPO3 4.5.0. I always used the extension “setpagetype”, but since it was not updated for the new page tree, I decided to write a new extension.

Screenshots

The extension adds a new menu item to quickly change if the page should be displayed in menus or not.

Also there is a new submenu to quickly change the page type.

Users manual

Just install the extension through the extension manager and that's it. After installation you have to clear the backend cache and reload the backend. After that, the new click menus should work properly.

Known problems

None so far...

To-Do list

Implement more useful click menus
